CANDIDATE
SENATORREPRESENTING

NOT CONTROLLED BY THE BIG INTERESTS

As soon as our Legislature is wrested from the control of the BIG INTERESTS and a Commission appointed, composed of men whom the PEOPLE'S SENATE can endorse, to enquire into our GENERAL UTILITIES, conditions will change in Hawaii.

Times will be better for all the people and not for the favored few only.

Ernest N. Smith, special correspondent for the Star-Bulletin, under the heading of "COMMON PEOPLE COMING TO THEIR OWN IN STATE OF CALIFORNIA," which appeared in the Star-Bulletin of October 23, writes an article which should be read by every voter in Hawaii. He tells of how the Southern Pacific R. R., the Telephone Company and other big trusts controlled California for years, by having its creatures in the Legislature, etc.

He tells how the people have risen and with the battle cry "LET THE PEOPLE RULE," are sweeping everything before them.

Through Commissions appointed to enquire into the methods of corporations, rates have come down for railroad travel and freights. Telephone companies and other corporate utilities have been compelled to reduce their charges. The result is that the business of railroads, telephone company, etc., has increased so largely that they are taking in just as much. But they have to employ more people to take care of the extra business. The people get the service cheaper while the wages of employees go up—even the corporations can't kick and "EVERYBODY IS HAPPY."

It proves that to have good government and prosperous conditions, THE PEOPLE MUST RULE.

Corporation rule has always been short-sighted, narrow-minded, despot and unlovely.

Why are the big corporations unpopular? "There is always a reason." Let us take as a test from the book of California.

We can make conditions here ideal if the voter will use a little horse sense.

As long as you are influenced by the shouts of the paid howlers to vote the straight ticket, so long will conditions remain rotten.

NOMINEES ARE TO BE IN RACE

Denying the contention of the Democrats on both points raised, the supreme court yesterday ruled that the errors committed by the Republican legislative nominees on Maui do not disqualify them, and that all eight candidates shall have their names placed on the official ballots for voting at the coming election a week from next Tuesday.

Of the first contention raised by the Democrats, that the Republican candidates had failed to comply with the law in the omission to state that they were candidates of their respective districts, the supreme court says:

"The written acceptance of the nominee of the foregoing nomination," his declaration that he is "qualified to be a candidate for Senator for the Second Senatorial District, Territory of Hawaii," and the signature and address of the nominee "show the understanding of the nominee as to what he was requested to become a candidate for and what he consented to."

"In construing the paper we should assume that the persons who signed it intended to do something which they had a legal right to do, and that they did not intend to do a vain and frivolous thing. Section 31 of the Revised Laws provides that no person shall be permitted to stand as a candidate for election to the legislature unless he shall be nominated and so requested in writing, signed by not less than twenty-five qualified electors of the district in which an election is ordered, and in which he is requested to be a candidate. The persons who signed the paper are electors of the second senatorial district. They had no legal right or authority to request anyone to become a candidate for senator except for the second district. Furthermore the paper was dated at Wailuku, the county seat of the county of Maui, which is embraced in the legislative district mentioned, and it mentions that an election has been ordered for senators for the second senatorial district."

"In view of all this the only fair, reasonable and sensible conclusion that can be given the paper is that it is a nomination of the person addressed to be a candidate for senator for the second senatorial district and a request that he become such candidate. The court is in duty bound to give a proper and legal effect to the paper unless there is something on its face or in connection with it which would prevent its being given validity. In giving this paper the effect above indicated no violence whatever is done its

FEW VOTERS IN RAIN

Under the rainy sky and with a few spectators hiding under the trees and umbrellas, the Democratic candidates and their lieutenants last night held a meeting on Kaneohe IV road, at Kailua.

The speakers were unable to attract the attention of the scattered crowd of listeners, and after shouting loudly against the Kailua breeze, which came down the valley, the Democrats abandoned their atmospheric attempts and went to their homes.

Deputy Sheriff Rose and "Soapbox" Barron had a short conference by themselves in front of the E. O. Hall store, King and Fort streets, and talked Democracy. As usual, Barron boasted that he is the man of the hour, politically, and expressed his readiness at all times to challenge the Republican leaders to debate on the soapbox. Rose, a gentleman, only smiled and said nothing.

Up at Pauoa, Mayor Fern, who intended to speak to about fifteen people, voters and non-voters, was disappointed to find a small crowd assembled in the park, where the Democrats held another meeting. At this place the rain interfered so much that the candidates and the crowd went away.

Republican candidates and speakers splashed about in the rain last night and though it poured so hard in Manoa the third precinct rally was not a success, the meetings at Kakaako and at River and Vineyard streets were well attended. Both Sam and Robert Parker made hits and all the candidates were very well received.

language, and nothing is read into it which is not clearly inferable from the paper itself. The paper is construed according to the manifest intent of the parties who signed it. What we have said applies equally to the papers of the several nominees as candidates for representative. It is accordingly held that the nomination papers were sufficient in substance."

This settles the more important of the two points raised. As to the failure of the candidates to specify their party affiliation, in writing on the nomination papers originally submitted to the Secretary, the court holds that this "will not justify or require the omission of the candidate's name from the official ballot."

KANEHOE VOTERS
HEAR GOOD TALK
BY CAPT. PARKER

Republican campaign speakers and candidates made a successful invasion of Kaneohe yesterday afternoon and returned later in the day well satisfied with the results of their trip to windward.

The Kaneohe people greeted the Republican candidates with leis in front of the Lee Wo Chong store.

Dowsett, Renton, Paris and practically all the candidates pointed out to the Kaneoheites that it is to their advantage to vote for the Republican ticket.

Col. Parker, for mayor, made several good points.

Dowsett, in defending his position from the attack which Link McCandless and his lieutenants have been making to the voters in Kaneohe, said that Link possesses more sugar stock than he, and invited the electorate to scrutinize "Linkona's" schemes carefully and thoughtfully before they cast their ballots on election day. The speaker made a strong speech.

Renton pointed out to the Hawaiians that Prince Kuhio, the standard bearer of the Republican party, is their leader, and invited them to place their confidence in him. He was given prolonged applause and a salvo of "Sura kela."

Paris and Bartlett, for supervisors, appealed to the voters to vote the straight Republican ticket on election day.

George E. Smith, for treasurer, told the Hawaiians that he was "makakau" in the performance of his duties and asked them all to vote for him and the entire Republican ticket.

C. A. Long, for supervisor, made a convincing speech in Hawaiian. The presentation of his arguments before the electorate apparently converted a number of the Democrats present. One of them, at least, told the Star-Bulletin man that Long was "pololei and sure kela." Asked whether he would vote for Long, he vociferated in the affirmative.

A. L. Castle, S. K. Mahoe, E. K. Fernandez, for representatives, and J. B. Enos, for supervisor, made short talks to the electorate. Senator Kalepou appealed to the Kaneoheites to vote for a straight Republican ticket.

The meeting was presided over by John Bell, candidate for Deputy Sheriff.

When the citizens of Kaneohe saw Captain Robert Parker mount the bench beneath the big mango tree, yesterday, they gave him a noisy welcome and the musicians broke into a song written for his benefit, which by the way, also had good things to say about other candidates on the Republican ticket.

Speaking in Hawaiian, Captain Parker told the people that he wanted their support for his election as sheriff. For a score of years and more he had been tried in public service; his record would speak for him. He referred to the great Chinatown fire in Honolulu, in 1900, during the days of the plague, and told how, when one of the "sanitary" fires had gotten away from the control of the fire department, the flames had swept the district toward the waterfront, spreading so rapidly that panic ensued among the people, Hawaiians, Chinese, Japanese and others. The militia was out, but the men of the militia seemed confused; at any rate they were making matters worse by herding refugees in the wrong direction, so that some of them were in danger of being forced back into the flames.

Captain Parker was then captain of police, and with his officers he jumped into the confusion and took hold of the situation. He organized some degree of order among the frightened people and particularly devoted his attention to the rescue of women and children from burning buildings and other dangerous places. Men and women were risking their lives trying to save articles of household possession, often of little value. Captain Parker and his men, few as they were, accomplished more than could the militia. Discipline did it, discipline and training, said the speaker. Now he asked for the votes of the people that he might become sheriff. He would devote to the discharge of his duties as sheriff, the same energy and the same discipline and experience and training that had come in so opportunely during the exciting, terrible days of the Chinatown fire.

POLITICAL MUSINGS

The patience of Job was rewarded—stay with it, Link!

What is the use of saying that Fern will attempt to block Col. Sam Parker's triumphal march to the mayor's chair? What will it amount to if he does?

Sam Parker has shown that, when he is mayor, he will be capable of doing his own thinking, gesturing and talking.

Cheerfulness, good humor, good logic and good three-rail-fence common sense regarding what a mayor should stand for, are qualities that are piling up a big stack of votes for Col. Sam.

Aviators are not the only people who take desperate chances. Independent candidates, for instance.

What a dull mayorality administration the coming one will be if Col. Sam Parker is not elected, after all the things he has pointed out that should be done, and would be done by a live-wire mayor.

POLITICS MIXED WITH KAIMUKI
STAG SOCIAL

Kaimuki's initial get-together stag social, at the new Liliuokalani school last night, was a successful illustration of the possibilities of community benefit in the use of public school buildings by the people outside of school hours for purposes of legitimate recreation and intellectual enjoyment.

For more than two hours a gathering that filled the large assembly hall to the doors was entertained with song, musical instrument, story and athletic performances, contributed by members of the improvement club, men from Fort Ruger and guests from other parts of the city. Although many numbers on the prepared program failed to materialize, the president of the club, H. G. Davis, had no difficulty in having the gaps filled by performers on the spur of the moment. Among the members, Father Valentin easily made the hit of the evening with two vocal solos. J. Walter Doyle, among the guests responding to calls, gave a laugh-provoking impersonation of a sideshow speller. A splendidly contested wrestling bout, ending in a draw, was given by Messrs. Derby and Clymer. Messrs. Bardsley and Rounds gave fine exhibitions of dancing, and Mr. Lau, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., skilful exhibitions of club swinging.

Messrs. Dix and Larimer were the accompanists on a fine piano purchased by the club for the assembly hall, other instrumental performers being Messrs. Schroeder, Finchun, Davis and Mades.

Near the close visitors were called on for remarks, among those named and the only ones responding being Supervisor McClellan and Charles Hustace, Jr. Mr. McClellan's speech was diplomatically worded, so that its bearing on his candidacy for re-election was only evident by inference. Mr. Hustace, however, made a direct appeal to the residents of Kaimuki to vote for himself for mayor. His remarks were received with good-natured applause, but many of those present were indignant that such an advantage of hospitality should have been taken by an ambitious politician. Some left the hall in protest and others expressed themselves in no uncertain tones after the meeting.

With joined hands the gathering dispersed about 10:30, singing "Auld Lang Syne."

RAN MARATHON
FROM UNCLE SAM

Tiring of serving his country's cause in the capacity of a soldier, with its attendant military problems remaining unsolved and a series of make-believe engagements with a friendly enemy, Charles A. Lester took French leave of the United States army as a member of Company F, Second Infantry, and would become a small farmer or squatter on the large landed estates of Samuel Damon at Maunaloa.

Special Officer Carter made a little excursion into the rural districts yesterday with the result that he came upon Lester engaged in the attempt to tickle a livelihood out of the soil.

He was dwelling in a native hut on the Damon estates when approached by the officer and asked why he was not with the bold and mire-bespattered warriors who were then at the front where the "battles raged."

Lester failed to advance a real good reason for his non-combative attitude at that particular moment.

Carter insisted that the man accompany him to the police station. A perusal of the records in the police morgue developed the fact that Lester was a much-wanted man in military circles. He is listed as a deserter and has been under this category since the first part of July when he disappeared from the haunts of the soldiery at Schofield Barracks.

The man was turned over to the military authorities today, who will dispose of his case.

Lester is alleged to have done some marathon running stunts in the Islands. He is credited with having attempted to get away for the Philippines on one or more occasions, as army transports called at the port.

'TUBERCULOSIS DAY' TO BE OBSERVED IN CHURCHES

Tuberculosis Day" will be observed by many of the churches of Honolulu tomorrow at which time the different ministers of the city will deliver strong sermons against the dread disease with the hopes of heightening the enthusiasm in the fight for its extermination. Following this the religious organizations will launch a campaign for the prevention and possibly the wiping-out of the disease.

James A. Rath, of Palama Settlement, and a member of the directing committee of the Anti-Tuberculosis League will speak at Kaumakapili church.

A short time ago the national headquarters of this league in New York sent letters to all ministers throughout the United States asking them to observe October 26 as "Tuberculosis Day" and to give their co-operation in their respective cities toward the extermination of the disease.

A Chinese speaker in San Francisco, Dr. Ng Poon Chew, predicts that within one hundred years China will be sending Christian missionaries to America.

CRAFTSMEN CLUB
HOLDS FIRST MEETING

The Craftsmen's Club, a newly organized class in manual training, met for the first time at the carpenter shop of the Y. M. C. A. this morning at ten o'clock.

This class was started last year and proved one of the big features among the members of the boys' department, and this year it has begun again with a larger attendance, and

Chester Carter, instructor in manual training at Mills College, will direct the class. It is the plan of the association to give instruction in all forms of carpentry to those who join the class, so that if a boy wants a surfboard or a coaster, he will be able to make it himself and not depend upon his father for the necessary money to purchase it.

The class will meet every Saturday morning at ten o'clock, and one of the features will be the monthly visit to one of the large industrial plants in the city so that the boys may have a chance to see different things in the process of manufacture, and at the same time get some knowledge of machinery.

Woodrow Wilson in a Pittsburg speech declared that monopolists who undersell competitors should be in jail.
